Blackboard:

Blackboard is a web-based learning management system licensed by CMU. Within Blackboard, a course website, also known as a shell, is automatically created for every CMU course. Face-to-face courses may or may not incorporate Blackboard, whereas Blackboard course shells are always used for online courses and will be available to you prior to the course start date. Seeing the course shell listed in Blackboard with unavailable adjacent to its title is an indication that your instructor has not made it available and is in no way indicative of registration status. To access Blackboard, open a web browser and enter <https://blackboard.cmich.edu/webapps/login/>. After the site loads, enter your CMU Global ID and password in the respective spaces provided. Click the "login" button to enter Blackboard and then the link to the appropriate course to enter the course's Blackboard shell. If you need assistance, contact the IT Helpdesk at 989-774-3662 / 800-950-1144 x. 3662. Self-guided student tutorial resources are also available at <https://blackboard.cmich.edu/webapps/login/>.

III. COURSE DESCRIPTION

Fundamentals of curriculum planning, development, implementation and evaluation.

IV. COURSE GOALS AND OBJECTIVES

C- Concept- and knowledge-driven: A professional educational practice that is concept and knowledge- driven has, as its foundation, content knowledge. This knowledge base is acquired through serious study and developed through research.

LEA- LEArner centered: A professional educational practice that is learner-centered focuses on the cognitive, affective and physical needs, and characteristics of each learner. It is based on the belief that all learners grow and develop throughout life and that all students can learn.

R- Reflective practice relevant to diverse settings and roles: Educators will work in diverse settings – from the large, urban high school to the small, rural school. Communities and schools are comprised of diverse people from a wide variety of cultural, ethnic, racial and socioeconomic backgrounds. Best educational practice requires recognition of and provisions for these differences.

After completing this course, the students will be able to:

1. Identify and interpret factors influencing curriculum planning, development, implementation and evaluation classroom. (LEA, R)
2. Write a rationale for the selection of curricular materials for a given program and students population. (C)
3. Make a critical analysis of the process of curriculum change in a given state, district, or school to highlight strengths and limitations and suggest lines of improvement. (LEA, R)
4. Identify at least three curriculum perspectives and compare their strengths and limitations with reference to a district, or school program she/ he is familiar with. (LEA, R)
5. Define subject centered, learner centered, teacher centered and society centered conceptions of curriculum, and describe their impact on instructional decision making in the classroom. (LEA, R)
6. Use theories of curriculum evaluation to write a rubric for assessing learning outcomes of a familiar district, state, or school curriculum unit or program. (LEA, R)
7. Use theories of curriculum planning and development to design a curriculum unit to be implemented in a familiar state, district, or school program. (LEA, R)
8. Compare the traditionalist and the re-conceptualists perspectives on curriculum development and their impact on classroom teaching and learning. (LEA, R)

V. METHODOLOGY

The methodology for this course will consist of a highly interactive seminar format in which students will participate actively in group discussions, case studies and debates, augmented by mini lectures and guest speaker presentations.

Group work will be modelled on the principles of collaborative (cooperative) learning. Students will be expected to do considerable reading and critical reflective analysis, contributing their insights, reflections and new learning in class and online.

VI. COURSE OUTLINE/ASSIGNMENTS

Pre-Class Assignment:

Reading Assignment – BEFORE the first Class:

Morrison, Ross & Kemp (required text) Chapters 1, 2 & 3.

Research four (4) readings/articles related to one aspect of curriculum development that you are interested in (past examples have included learning styles, mobile learning, authentic assessment). Review the readings and come prepared to present the highlights from the articles along with their relevance to your own practice or experience. These readings may be re-used for the completion of other assignments within this course.

Come to the first class weekend prepared to discuss your readings and findings in a small group setting and be prepared to collectively share your knowledge with the larger group. (No prior meetings as a group are required).

You will be required to submit a written brief summary (with appropriate references) to the course instructor.

Course Outline:

Exceptional circumstances may arise where a participant will not be able to attend a portion of a class. Alternative makeup assignments will be required for any absences.

Academic Integrity:

Because academic integrity is a cornerstone of the University's commitment to the principles of free inquiry, students are responsible for learning and upholding professional standards of research, writing, assessment, and ethics in their areas of study. Written or other work which students submit must be the product of their own efforts and must be consistent with appropriate standards of professional ethics. Academic dishonesty, which includes cheating, plagiarism and other forms of dishonest or unethical behavior, is prohibited. A breakdown of behaviors that constitute academic dishonesty is presented in the CMU Bulletin (<https://bulletins.cmich.edu/>).

Student Rights and Responsibilities:

Each member of the Central Michigan University community assumes an obligation regarding self conduct to act in a manner consistent with a respect for the rights of others and with the University's function as an educational institution. As guides for individual and group actions within this community, the University affirms the general principles of conduct described in the Code of Student Rights, Responsibilities and Disciplinary Procedures at <https://www.cmich.edu/ess/studentaffairs/Pages/Code-of-Student-Rights.aspx>.
